Holidays—2017

The holidays are upon us, and there is much scurrying about the building.

For the Crisis Center the winter holiday season began with the winter wear giveaway (see page 3), and has continued with over 300 families receiving turkey and fixin's for Thanksgiving.

Future plans include a holiday decorating party for the residents. Aided by the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority and Crisis Center staff, residents will prepare the shelter living room area with holiday decorations followed by carol singing.

Next we will turn our attention to the Elgin Holiday Toy Giveaway which is December 14. Last year over 6,000 toys were provided to families in the Elgin, South Elgin area. More information about this is available on page 3.

Then more fun with a resident holiday brunch including a visit from Santa, and gifts for Christmas morning.

Christmas is always an exciting time around here, and your help is needed and appreciated!

Thanks for Coming CCC Open House 2017

Over the weekend of October 29, Community Crisis Center was proud to have over 175 persons come to see the changes we have made.

Visitors were greeted at the front door where a mural painted by Tracey Padron, and supported by Nancy and Art Schueneman, greeted them. Finished in 2016, the mural was painted as part of our 2015 celebration of 40 years of service to the Elgin and surrounding communities.

From there they went to the 3rd floor and began their tour of the building. Along the way, staff were positioned to tell the stories of persons who had been helped here.

Often heard at the end of the tour was, "I knew you were here, but I had no idea of all the things you do."

We really enjoyed the opportunity to give our friends and supporters an opportunity to see what we do.

If you attended, thanks for coming. If you missed it, watch for the next one!

Part of the mural includes Founding Mothers, Venita Leach, Sally Brown, and Becky Albert. This portrait greets everyone as they come up the stairs to enter the building.

Save the Date!

Domestic Violence Rally Recap

October 26 was the Domestic Violence Rally at Elgin Community College. Located in the Seigle Auditorium, attendees were privileged to hear from Kane County State's Attorney Joe McMahon.

Attorney McMahon highlighted some interesting statistics including a recent study that showed that while Kane County overall felonies are on a downward trend, this is not true of Domestic Violence incidents which remain constant. He suggested that many mean that indeed victims are no longer hiding the violence that they have been enduring for years, and that more awareness is helpful in bringing perpetrators to court. He introduced his staff and shared with us both their successes and frustrations.

Following State's Attorney McMahon was Anna Whitmer, Coordinator of the Abuser Intervention Program at the Crisis Center. Anna explained how abusers are helped and reaffirmed that the learned behavior of domestic violence can be unlearned.

The program ended with a vigil honoring local persons who died at the hands of their abusive partners.

Other events for the month included a presence at area libraries and a panel presentation led by Kane County Sheriff Donald E. Kramer.

Candles shine during the vigil for those who did not survive domestic violence.

Kim Schellin-Rog, Crisis Center Domestic Violence Program Coordinator, opens the evening's events.
